

ABSTRACT

A method for recruiting artists whereby a talent business can streamline the talent discovery process. In particular, the talent business receives and evaluates submissions of artistic works over global computer networks and engages an artist, whose works have been received, in a contract. This talent business is exemplified by a record business but may encompass any talent business, such as in the modeling or script writing industries.